IT company offers first Work Trial Placement

Left to right: Aidan Casserley (Owner of Castlerock), ASE Work Seeker, Achmad Gamielien (Castlerock)

Today, an ASE work seeker started with a trial placement at Castlerock, an IT support company, in Cape Town. A work trial entails the placement of a work seeker with a disability in a real work situation for a specific period of time. During this period, ASE offers support and monitoring services to the work seeker and the employer.

The benefits of a trial placement for an employer include:

- having an extra employee on hand without the expense of a salary, as well as
- the opportunity to work alongside someone with a disability.

The work seeker benefits from getting real work exposure, and ASE gets the opportunity to complete an important aspect of the work assessment, with a positive impact on the subsequent matching of the work seeker with a permanent job.

If your company is interested in offering a trial placement to a work seeker with a disability, please contact Madri Engelbrecht at madri@altitudegroup.co.za, or 083 504 4571.
